BOY'S SKULL IS CRUSHED

Left Game of Marbles to Act the Hero, and is Ground Beneath Horses' Hoofs.

MADISON, Ill., Nov. 16.—Paul Kauffman, 11 years old, left a game of marbles to make an attempt to stop a runaway team of horses dragging a heavy wagon, as they dashed through a crowded business street in Madison Tuesday.

Grasping the reins, the boy pulled the horses around until a collision with street car and a buggy containing two women was averted. Then he stumbled.

The wheels of the heavy wagon passed over his head as the frightened animals plunged onward. Scores saw the boy dashed to the earth. Men picked up the crushed and senseless figure and summoned a physician. The boy's skull was fractured and he is dying at the Lutheran Hospital.

NINTH JOB IN EIGHT DAYS

Safe Robbers, Who Have Created Reign of Terror, Continue Their Depredations.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 16.—Safe robbers, who by their almost nightly crimes recently have created a reign of terror in Northwestern Ohio, continued their depredations Tuesday when they blew open the safe in the office of the Lyons Grain and Coal Company, at Lyons, and the safe of the M. E. Frazier Company, at Seville.

At Lyons, the robbers got over $40 for their trouble and at Seville $75 in cash and note and mortgages estimated to value $10,000.

The cracksmen in each case used nitroglycerine, wrecking both burglar-proof safes at Lyons. Several residents were awakened by the explosion, but none ventured to investigate until Ray Smith, manager of the Lyons Grain Company, opened the office at 5:30 o'clock.

The robbers made a clean get-away at both places, using a speedy automobile. This makes the ninth job in Northwestern Ohio in eight days, without a single arrest.

While driving at high speed in an automobile in search of the robbers Sheriff Fred Grandy, of Fulton county and Detectives Tracy and Herbert, of the Toledo Police Department, were severely injured Tuesday. One of the automobile tires burst, sending the car into the ditch near here. Two of Tracy's ribs were fractured, Herbert's back wrenched and Grandy escaped with a sprained shoulder and badly bruised limbs.

Bloodhounds were secured at Cleveland and put on the trail of the bandits. The bandits carried the strong box north of the village, where it was opened with another charge. This was found by a posse.

TEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL SUICIDES

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Nov. 16.—Her head pillowed upon a wreath she had taken from her mother's coffin four years ago and carefully guarded ever since, 10-year-old Harriet Owens Tuesday afternoon, with a revolver, ended the grief she had suffered ever since her parent died and left her to keep house for her father and care for a brother two years her junior.

Laying at her side was a childish scribble which said: "Good-by, papa. I am going to join mother, and I hope that God will forgive me."

Known throughout the neighborhood as a typical "Little Mother," Harriet had the misfortune to be the child of a man too poor to pay for the services of a housekeeper. She gravely discussed affairs of the home with her neighbors after school hours, evidencing a wisdom rare for one of her years.

Recently she decided that she did not want to go to school any more, and Tuesday afternoon, after sending her mother to her lessons, she told a woman living next door that she was tired of life and showed her her father's revolver, which she had found in a bureau drawer. This neighbor thought little of the incident until an hour later, when she heard a shot, and, running into the Owens home, found Harriet, her head on her mother's wreath and a smile on her face, with a telltale bullet hole in her left temple.

SAYS SHE'S A GODDESS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Susan McKenna, a dishwasher, arrested at the instance of Anthony Comstock for writing scurrilous post cards to President Taft, was committed to Bellevue Hospital for observation by a Magistrate Wednesday. When arraigned she announced dramatically that she was the Goddess of Liberty.

For the Children

General Baden-Powell,
Founder of Boy Scouts.

The boy and girl scouts of America will be glad to learn that Lieutenant General Sir Robert S. S. Baden-Powell of the British army, originator and founder of the scout movement, is soon to visit the United States. The general recently landed in Canada with sixteen boy scouts from England under command of Captain Arthur Wade. These boys are the pick of the English scouts and are experts in the work. They have been showing the Canadians how well they are drilled, and those who have seen them are full of praise. The boys will also give drills and demonstrations in this country. It being General Baden-Powell's idea to instill the youth of America in the benefits of training along military lines.

An Impossible Story.

A certain king once made a proclamation that he would give a golden ball to any one of his subjects who would tell him the most wonderful story. But it must be quite impossible for the story to be true or the prize would not be given.

From all parts of the kingdom people came to him with remarkable stories, but the king declared that it was not quite possible for one and all of them to be true, and the prize was not awarded.

At last there came an old man, followed by two servants bearing an immense jar between them.

"May it please your majesty," said the old man, "your most excellent father borrowed from my father this jar full of gold, promising that your majesty would pay the same amount back to me."

"Oh, that is absurd and impossible!" said the astonished king as he looked at the huge jar.

"Then if it is impossible," said the old man, "I have fairly won the golden ball, but if my story be true your majesty ought to pay your father's debt."

Thus the king was obliged to declare that the old man had won the prize.

Conundrums.

Why is a nail fast in the wall like an old man? Because it is infirm.

How are all lawyers related? They are brothers-in-law.

What is the most popular paper at the summer resorts? Fly paper.

Why is the fly one of the grocer's best customers? Because it settles on the spot.

Why does an aeronaut dislike speaking about his trips? It is a soar point with him.

What is unable to think or speak, yet tells the truth to all the world? A pair of scales.

What country does a crying baby sigh for? More-rock-oh or Lap-land.

Why is a shabby coat like a man with insomnia? Because it has not had a nap for a long time.

She Beat the Boys.

There was a swimming match held in the river at Nottingham, England, not long ago in which fourteen boys and one girl participated. The prize was $10, and it was won by the girl, who is the daughter of poor parents. The distance was three miles, and she beat the same boy by a number of yards. After she had won the prize she swam a mile farther to show what she could do. The boys of the world will have to kick out further and faster to keep up with the girls.

Points of the Compass.

A little girl had been told by her teacher to stand with her face north and her right hand would be at the east, her left hand would be at the west and her back would be at the south. Starting to go over it, the teacher asked, "Now tell me what is in front of you?"

After some thought the child replied, "My stomach."

News.

An old gnu asked a shy new gnu—"Twason the plains, this interview—'Oh, have you heard the news today?' The new gnu trembled. 'Where are they?' 'Noise frightens me!' and fast he fled. The old gnu heartily laughed and said: 'Well, if that isn't too absurd! I thought the meaning of that word Even a new gnu knew.'"

Milady's Mirror

If you would keep your looks beyond their natural limit practice self control. Nothing so quickly wrecks the nerves, hence the looks, as letting oneself go.

It may be easier to fly into a rage at trivialities, to pucker the face with worry or to shake with fear, but the woman with regard for keeping young learns to quell these emotions in the interest of nervous force.

Have you ever stopped to consider what unchecked anger takes out of you? Leaving consideration for your victim or a regard for conventions out of the question, "getting mad" weakens one physically and mentally, and nerves suffer.

Have you never said "I feel as weak as a rag" after indulging in a temper? The next time you make that remark put the blame in the right place. Learn that rage is weakening and aging and you will have taken a long step toward self control.

Cowardice as an emotion is debasing to the soul. It is also wrinkling to the flesh and destructive of nervous force. The woman who lives in a tremor of fear, getting into an equal panic whether she sees a mouse or a murderer, who lies awake half the night listening for possible marauders, who gets pleasure in nothing through her insensate fear of horse, motor, canoe or yacht, is the woman who will soon look her years—and more.

If nervous peace is to be yours keep a grip on your emotions. Love not nor hate not, fret not nor fear not, envy not nor rage not—to excess. Better a colorless character than a worn-out body—if the choice must be made. The mistake lies in thinking emotions controlled are emotions lacking. One makes for strength so surely as the other is a sign of weakness.

A White Throat.

At this season the girl who has gone colorless the summer through is beginning to be anxious about the state of her throat. The day of drastic treatment is at hand if her neck is to look well in winter. The skin is browned from exposure to the sun.

To whiten it rub it each night with lemon, letting it stay on all night. If there are rough places in the skin it can be gone over with a fine pumice stone dipped in lemon juice.

In the morning rinse off with warm water in which a little almond meal has been dissolved. This whitens and smooths the skin.

A more decided bleach is made from eight ounces of alcohol, four ounces of rosewater and a teaspoonful of tincture of benzoin. Saturate a thin piece of linen in the liquid and pin around the throat and let it stay on an hour. Then massage with a good cucumber cream.

Take It For What It's Worth.

Pork is not commonly reported to be a hygienic food, and assuredly it is not aesthetic associations. It is therefore somewhat surprising to hear a diet of pork recommended to the beauty seeker. Such is the latest dictum, however, and in proof of its wisdom we are asked to note the clear, velvety skins of the country girls with whom pork is a staple article of diet.

Pork is supposed to produce this velvety effect by supplying only matter to the skin. It acts as a sort of natural cosmetic and is much less expensive than the creams city women employ to counteract the harshness and dryness of their complexions. In the absence of pork bacon is recommended.

The Curse of Red Hair.

Even Titian did not succeed in removing the curse from red hair, for it is variously accused of causing anything from temper to freckles. And now comes an English scientist who is trying to blame it for shortness of stature. By a system of statistics all his own he has figured that among boys and girls at the age of fourteen the shortest invariably have red hair. Among girls those with black and blond hair take first place in height, and among boys the light browns are easy winners. The figures look conclusive, but those who do not like them may reflect with Mark Twain that all statistics are watered stock.

Use a Medicine Ball.

A medicine ball is a good possession for any one shut up in an office all day. A few minutes spent in throwing it will send the blood coursing through the veins. Fencing and bowling are both admirable sports for those who need exercise, and every office worker should seek out some opportunity of practicing them. And in any case she ought to do all the outdoor walking she can get into the day without overwearying herself.

To Restore Fair Hair.

When fair hair begins to lose luster it is a good plan to apply olive oil liberally, comb the hair thoroughly and then to expose it for some hours to the direct rays of a warm sun. The exposure may be repeated on the following day, and on the third day the hair may be washed if deemed necessary with warm soap lather and be dried.

For the Children

Interesting Family of Five Clever Boys.

One of the most interesting families in the diplomatic corps and, for that matter, in the whole city of Washington is that of Count de Buisseret, the minister from Belgium. The children are great favorites at the national capital, where they have become known through their skill as linguists and musicians. The children are all boys, and there are five of them. Even the youngest is a good musician, for their education began at an early age. On occasions when the count and countess entertain the youngsters are often called upon to show their skill in music, and so well do they perform that their efforts have won universal commendation.

Who Was Touched?

The two players who know the secret remain in the room long enough for the trick to be made sure.

One stands in a corner, and the other in the middle of the room calls out, "Ebenzer, do you hear?" Ebenzer says nothing, but listens attentively to hear who among the company speaks first. The other partner repeats the question, and still no answer. Some one will be likely to make a remark soon, and then Ebenzer will rouse up and answer, "Yes, I hear." "Then leave the room," says the other player, and Ebenzer goes out. The partner then makes a great show of choosing which one he shall touch, but of course ends by touching the person who first spoke after the game began. This done, Ebenzer is called in to say who was touched, and every one is puzzled to know how he can tell.

My Lady's Toilet.

The players are all seated except one, for whom no chair must be provided.

Each player takes the name of some article of a lady's toilet—her necklace, chain, bracelets, rings, comb, gloves, hat, shoes, gown, etc. One stands in the center as lady's maid and says, "My lady is going out and wants her hat." The hat must instantly jump up and spin around. If she forgets to do so she pays a forfeit. Each article must spin around when "wanted." Occasionally the lady's maid says, "My lady wants her toilet changed," when all the players must rise and change seats. In the scuffle the center player tries to get a seat. If she succeeds the one left chairless becomes lady's maid for the next turn.

The Ticket Collector.

One of the boys in the back of the room was evidently thinking of something besides his lesson.

So the teacher, merely to attract his attention, put the question: "Harry, can you tell me where Noah was when the animals were going into the ark?"

"Spoke he was takin' tickets," was the prompt response.

Corner Ball.

Four players stand on the four angles of a square and the four adversaries in the center. The ball is passed from one to another of the players in the corners and finally thrown at the central players. These last, if they can catch the ball, may fling it back. If the player in the corner hits a central player the latter is out, and vice versa.

The Thieving Maggie.

A few weeks ago a large tree in England in which several magpies had nested for years was blown down during a gale, and in a hollow which was unsuspected was found over $300 worth of articles stolen from various houses. The principal thing was a diamond ring worth $200. The largest article was a silver backed hairbrush.

All Together, Sing!

Pearson, swinging on a branch, sang the softest trill.
Low and long it was, full of lovely meaning.
Robin, tugging at a worm, paused and wiped his bill.
Paused and perked his head, stood his feathers preening.
To sing his song it really seemed he had forgotten quite.
A bee that flew from rose to lily lingered in her flight.
Hummed and buzzed and hummed again, tried to give the keynote.
Wren, though busy with her nest, stopped to sing a wee note.
Thus reminded, robin chirped cheerily and sang.
Sparrow trilled his very loudest, sang his sweetest, best.
Wren, upon the arbor perched, looking at her nest.
Sang with robin and with sparrow till the garden rang.
